Update on Slow Streets & the MCCC

Last week we asked you to jump online and leave a comment for City Council members in support of prioritizing Slow Streets for Sacramento. We were heard! Thank you!

This next Tuesday, City Council is prioritizing the entire set of "asks" in the year one recommendations in the Mayors'

Commission on Climate Change report. Slow Streets is on the agenda as well as lifting up active transportation to a higher level of importance. Putting "walking and rolling" at the top of the hierarchy is smart as these are the only carbon neutral options for getting around. When you choose biking or walking, you are making a choice for clean air, which positively impacts your community.

We need to keep pressure on City Council to make active transportation a priority, and taking this a step further, we need to push for thorough neighborhood-level audits to understand where to prioritize investments in 2021 in high-injury portions of the city. If you can please, make your voice heard at the City Council meeting Tuesday, November 10th at 2pm. Speak up for clean air and active transportation.

Free Bike Lights with SABA's Lights On! Project

The days are darker now and we want you to be safe and sound as you ride your bike during the darker months. SABA will be giving away free bike lights that help you see and be seen.
